HOT STATE FIGHT TO BE CONCLUDED OVER WEEK-END

SUPPORT OF LUECK BY REPUBLICANS LEADS NEW ASPECT.

RESULT IN DOUBT

Presidential Candidacy of La Follette Gives Campaign Different Direction.

(By Associated Press)

MADISON — Candidates for state, congressional and legislative offices in Wisconsin Saturday and Monday will bring to a close one of the most unusual campaigns in the history of the state. As the campaign closes opinions vary greatly as to the probable outcome of the general election next Tuesday.

The campaign assumed a direction never before known in Wisconsin because of the candidacy of Robert M. La Follette, senior Wisconsin senator for the presidency. His candidacy has drawn a majority of La Follette republicans out of the state to take part in the national drive for votes. Meanwhile, other groups have enlarged their activities within the state in an effort to defeat the La Follette ticket in Wisconsin and also the state progressive republican ticket.

Fight Is Hot

A campaign which at the close of the primary was not expected to gather much momentum has steadily gained until the last two weeks when political leaders of practically every faction have taken the stump for some candidate.

The central feature of the state campaign is the candidacy of Judge Martin L. Lueck of Beaver Dam against Gov. John J. Blaine, who is seeking a third term. Although the democratic party has shown little

Treat 36 Gas Victims for Poison

(By Associated Press)

WISCONSIN — Investigation by chemists of the bureau of mines into the effects of fumes from commercial gasoline containing tetra-ethyl lead indicate that the danger of poisoning from such gases is extremely remote. It is pointed out that the death of five men employed at the Standard Oil company of New Jersey laboratories was due to poisoning encountered in the manufacture of commercial gasoline containing tetra-ethyl lead which is not sold to automobile manufacturers except when diluted so that the mixture comprises only one part tetra-ethyl lead to 1,000 parts of gasoline by volume.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Thirty-six persons are being treated in hospitals and private hospitals and Wrights in their homes in New York City and New Jersey health officials joined today to investigate the dangers of ethyl gas, the manufacturer of which at the Standard Oil company's plant at Elizabeth, N. J., has already caused five deaths.

The local board of health has prohibited the sale of the gas in the city and made it a misdemeanor for any one to use it in automobiles.

Several New Jersey cities also have taken action prohibiting its sale.

The local board of health was joined yesterday. All the dead and those who are under treatment are employees at the Standard Oil company's plant at Elizabeth, N. J., and were afflicted while engaged in making the gas.

The investigation, carried out by the Standard Oil officials said the gas was extremely dangerous while in the process of manufacture, but declared that in the diluted form in which it is being used in automobiles, it is harmless.

LABOR CABINET TO STEP DOWN BEFORE PARLIAMENT MEETS

MAC DONALD MINISTRY TO REMAIN IN OFFICE FOR FEW DAYS.

POWER IS GONE

Huge Majority Piled Up by Conservatives Insure Legislative Swing.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — The laborite cabinet, headed by Premier Macdonald, after a two hour session this morning, is understood to have decided to remain in office a few days and then resign before the assembling of the new parliament.

It is expected the cabinet will resign next week rather than meet the new parliament and be turned out on the king's address.

The government of part of the government to remain in office a few days longer is due to the necessity of clearing up departmental business meanwhile. Mr. Macdonald will spend his last week-end for a long time — perhaps forever — in the prime ministerial official rustic retreat at Chequers.

RUSSIAN OPINION DIVIDED ON DEFEAT OF MAC DONALD

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW — The defeat of the labor government in England has produced divergent opinions in Soviet Russia. In some quarters it is feared that it means the death of the present Anglo-Russian treaty and projected loan, while in others it is insisted that the conservatives will be forced to come to terms with the soviet because of England's economic need of Russia.

M. Stockfleit, in the newspaper "Workers' Voice," of Moscow, says no political party in Europe ever deserved defeat more than Premier Macdonald's. In his opinion the publication of the "spurious Zinoviev letter" had a great effect on the result, as by this way Macdonald did sign his own death warrant in favor of Baldwin and Curzon.

"It now is evident," he adds, "that in England, as in all other countries, the labor party can capture power only by a definite and open class struggle."

RAIN PUTS CRIMP IN FOREST FIRES

Laona Flames Well Under Control; Michigan Now Reports Trouble.

(By Associated Press)

LAONA, WIS. — A heavy rain in the eastern part of Forest county early this morning has stopped all fire and forest fires which have swept over thousands of acres of cut-over timber land since last Saturday.

Reports received here today from the timber belt near Blackwell stated that all of the fires were well under control and that the rain had put most of them in a smoldering state.

However, 100 fire fighters were still on the alert today under the direction of W. P. Lawson, state fire warden.

POWERS SECTION OF MICHIGAN BURNED BY FOREST FIRES

Detroit — Forest and brush fires were reported in four sections of Michigan, one of them believed to be the largest so far this season. At Menominee, Mich., in the northwest part of the state, 200 men under the direction of Edward C. Thaddeus, department chief, were fighting a big brush fire which had destroyed many acres of second growth timber. Burned by a high wind last night, there was danger it would spread, of the conflagration spreading to virgin timber lands. A number of farms were in the path of the flames.

In Grand Traverse County, 100 men were under control several days ago, were reported to have broken out again. In the upper peninsula, a crew put under control a brush fire which burned over a small area.

Red Russia in Threat of Repairs Following Zinovjeff Letter Incident

London — The soviet editor of "Red Russia," Karl Radek, writing in the newspaper "Proletary," warns Great Britain to expect reprisals for the Zinovjeff letter incident, according to the Daily Express. Radek is quoted as declaring that Premier Macdonald knew the letter emanated from the same officials who falsified the documents formerly served as the basis of Lord Curzon's note.

CAR OF GRADES SOLD FROM COUNTY

Sixteen Head Average $118.00

—Car of Shorthorns
Also Sold.

Sixteen head of high grade Holsteins and Guernseys were sold for $118.00 through the services of the Rock County Farm Bureau on Thursday. The earload was obtained by C. L. Becker, Peoria, Ill., and nearly all the animals had cow testing association records.

The record of high grade Holsteins and Guernseys will be the morning, noon and evening greeting of every honey buyer in the state to his fellow men during honey week, Nov. 16 to 22.

At this time, the American Honey Producers League, with the co-operation of all honey enthusiasts, will be "telling the world" and Wisconsin some of the secrets of the food value of honey.

The league, headed by B. F. Kindig, of Lansing, Mich., as president, and S. P. Wilson, beeman at the University of Wisconsin, chairman of the advertising division, are planning on making honey the best known product of the beekeepers in the United States and Canada to co-operate with the storekeepers in giving demonstrations on why and how we use honey.

Much has been accomplished since the league was organized four years ago. Systematic advertising has been adopted, standard grades of honey have been established, methods of packing and shipping have been improved, traffic rates reduced, and stringent methods of combating bee diseases are being used, all of which has helped the public in the obtaining of better grades of honey at reasonable prices.

ENACT WILD SCENES

LOCAL PAVING JOB LARGEST IN U. S.

Greatest Single City Street Project So Far in 1924.

Janesville is winning national distinction by virtue of its nine-mile paving program for 1924 recently completed, a bulletin from the Portland Cement Association weekly publication, "Portland," states. Janesville is the first city to have the largest paving project in the list of street awards made during the present year.

While larger cities than Janesville perhaps laid more pavement this year they did so under several contracts, but the largest single job recorded is the local one of 167,000 square yards.

A copy of the bulletin was received Thursday by City Manager Henry Traxler from L. S. Budd, Milwaukee, district engineer of the Portland association, Wisconsin.

California City Second

The article shows Beverly Hills, Calif., in second place, followed by Andover, N. Y. It says:

"Total of 25,658 square yards of city street paving have been awarded during 1924

thus far. Of this amount there are only 10 single street awards of more than 100,000 square yards, and Janesville, Wisconsin, a city of about 20,000 population, heads the list with the other nine as follows:

City Sq. Yds.

Janesville, Wis. 167,000

Beverly Hills, Calif. 25,658

Andover, N. Y. 157,000

Burbank, Calif. 150,000

Washington, D. C. 122,000

Marshalltown, Iowa. 118,071

Seattle, Wash. 108,750

West Allis, Wis. 105,000

Muskegon, Michigan. 103,187

Pensacola, Fla. 101,480

City Park, La. 100,000

The total cost of the local 1924 paving program is figured at $396,920.08, of which the property owners paid $343,022.74 and the city $53,898.24, making the city's share of the project about 14 percent. These figures were announced Thursday by City Manager Traxler after a final settlement with the contractor, the R. R. Birdsall & Son company, Racine.

Birdsall's share was paid in cash $164,482.92.

POLICE ASSIGNED TO
HOMECOMING BATTLE

Chief Charles Newman and six patrolmen will be on duty at the fair grounds Saturday to handle the crowds expected for the Janesville-Edgerton homecoming football game. The all police department will be available for work Friday night, Halloween night.

WHITE PLAGUE IS TO BE CONQUERED IN TEN YEARS

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI—Before the end of the next 10 years the plague will be more feared than influenza or smallpox, according to a statement made today by Dr. Frederick J. Kalltever, associate professor of medicine, Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, before the annual convention of the interstate post-graduate assembly.

Colleges and universities have made rapid strides in medical treatment of tuberculosis through research and discovery, until now the mortality rate from this disease has been materially abated, Dr. Kalltever declared. The death rate in 1900 was five times what it is today from tuberculosis, he added.

A new discovery, whereby sterility cannot only be prevented, but which determines whether children are susceptible to the disease was revealed at the convention. While attempting to wean the public of the disease in China, more than ten years ago, the demonstration given here was one of the first in the country.

Thirty-seven Milwaukee school children were selected at random for the experiment. The vaccination showed thirty were susceptible and seven immune.

PREDICTS SHORTAGE OF GOOD PEA SEED

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Wisconsin pea growers are going to face a shortage of seed next year when they plant their crop, according to E. J. DeWiche, in charge of the upper Wisconsin branch experiment stations for the state agricultural department.

Most of the pea seeds that have been planted in the west by Indiana pea growers have been shipped in from western states, particularly Montana, Idaho and Washington, says DeWiche. Due to dry weather, the seed crop was greatly reduced.

Mr. DeWiche said the farmers turned to grow their own seed. He said that while not all sections of the state are suited to production of seed peas, areas where pea diseases are not prevalent can grow the seed to advantage. In this way, farmers can eliminate freight charges on seed.

The End to an Experimental Adventure

When the Labor government won its election and a labor premier with a ministry made up of several factions and representatives, its operation was only possible by a coalition with the Liberals and Conservatives or by a few members from each of those parties giving support to the Labor leadership. The Labor party never had a working majority and only remained in office so long as the Liberals or Conservatives would vote for government measures. The moment there was a division on any question where Liberals and Conservatives would act together, an end came to the Labor adventure and experiment in political if not actual socialism. Responsibility of government weakened the premier. He found his socialist theories which had made him much trouble as a pacifist and opponent of the government's plans, both under Lloyd George and Stanley Baldwin, impossible as practical governmental methods.

The Labor government was to install many reforms which had been written into the program of the socialist party and frankly called "red" by its own membership. First on the program was the recognition of the soviet government. Opposition to MacDonald's party irritated the most outspoken and radical of his followers. But MacDonald found that the soviet, in actual contact, was quite a different matter from the theoretical communist and socialist government which fancy painted as having established the workingman as the ruler of his own destiny. So it was necessary to trade and traffic and parley for a long time with the Russians—and in the end the British got the worst of it.

The next serious question—that which most closely came home to the Labor party—was establishment of employment for the million or so of men and women who were in idleness and were receiving dole to keep them alive. Nothing that was done. No solvent was forthcoming. The juncture with the Herriot government in France did finally add in an entente which found its result in the evacuation of the truce, and with the acceptance of the Dawes plan, placed Germany once more in position to enter into commercial and industrial competition with the British. Here again there was bitter disappointment since the result was greeted with the fear of an influx of the cheaper German goods to the detriment of the British and still there was no solution of the unemployment question, in sight by the Dawes agreement.

The British were tired of the wobbly Lloyd George and his ability to change color with every passing political breeze. That and the apparent laziness of the Baldwin government made the choice of a strong labor minority a matter of holding an election. But now the Conservatives have won a decisive victory. They will have a clear working majority in the Commons. The Liberal party has disappeared as a factor and is a poor third in the lists. Lloyd George can do nothing as a liberal. Labor has been sunk to a minority in parliamentary procedure. But the Conservatives must watch their steps. The experimental adventure may again be attempted if the Conservatives are unequal to the task of making England a better place for the workingman and do something to increase employment. That, after all, is the largest issue. Settling that other demands are merely collateral.

It would seem that a lot of this "Hoover gas" had been given to the voters.

The Three Amendments

We are to vote on three amendments to the constitution of the state. All three deserve success. One provides for an additional judge of the circuit court in Dane county and that is a need for the betterment of legal practice and the establishment of justice. Under the court practice scores of cases are tried in Dane county which do not get to any other circuit. Certain cases originating in other counties are given to the Dane court to decide. Therefore the judge of that circuit has more than he can do and more is pitted upon him than should be reasonably expected of any judge.

These outside cases are so massed as to make another judge a necessity if we are to keep the court calendar up to date.

Then we have an amendment which will be an aid to the reforestation of the state. That by all means should be given support as also the amendment providing for home rule for cities. We have been giving far too much local power to the legislature in the matter of municipal governments.

It is more a question of carelessness than intent that causes amendments to be voted down. There never is a full vote on amendments. But this time the voters should consider the amendments as a most important part of their duty when at the polls on November 4.

It is remembered that Al Jennings, craving a trip to Washington, said he had testimony that "would rock the nation." When he went on the stand his testimony would not even rock a cradle. Now we have another rocking story of the same sort. Frank P. Walsh joined the rockers saying he would present testimony in the so-called slush fund investigation "that would rock the foundations." SCHOOL FOR LUMBER USERS

BY PHEDERIC J. HASICK.

Washington—Among his multifarious activities in the public interest Uncle Sam conducts a school for the benefit of all lumber or wood using industries. Short intensive training courses are given at the Forest Products Laboratory of the Forest Service at Madison, Wisconsin, that demonstrates the practical solutions of the problem of factory and mill, and manufacturers and salesmen from all parts of the country are enrolled as students.

Thus far some 800 individuals, representing a wide variety of interests, have attended these courses, and many firms value this service so highly that they send representatives to the classes regularly.

The next courses will be held in December, the first opening on the first day of the month, and enrollment is now being received. Unfortunately the laboratory does not have sufficient funds to make it possible to give this service to the public, consequently a cooperative charge is made to cover the cost of the demonstration courses. This charge is uniformly $100 for the courses of one week and $150 for the two weeks' course.

The Forest Products Laboratory is maintained in cooperation with the University of Wisconsin to promote the best and most economical use of the products of our forests and thereby help to perpetuate the forests themselves. While it is primarily a research institution the laboratory has as one of its primary functions the task of getting into practical application and use the knowledge and processes it discovers. It has gathered much practical information on the properties of wood and on the manufacture and use of wood products. The economical use of wood, it points out, is of large importance not only to the nation as a whole, threatened as it is with the consequences of forest depletion, but to the industries which will benefit by improved practices and by the saving of raw material.

The laboratory publishes the results of its researches in bulletins, technical notes, and articles in trade journals. It also employs correspondence and personal contact for the same purpose. In still other instances it has found its greatest success in personal instruction, by which manufacturers, trade specialists, salesmen and consumers meet at the laboratory for demonstrations, tests, lectures, study and the discussion of individual problems.

Hence, the school demonstration courses are given in the kiln drying of lumber, boxing and crating, gluing of wood, and wood properties and uses. The instruction in these subjects aims to give not only basic knowledge but its practical application, and that it has been found extremely valuable is evidenced by the testimony of many men who have attended the courses.

The course in gluing runs for one week, beginning December 1; that in wood properties and uses, one week beginning December 8, and in kiln drying, two weeks beginning December 8. The course in boxing and crating will not be offered this December, but will probably be available in the spring. Each course occupies the full time of those in attendance, so that it is not possible to take two courses simultaneously, but two may be taken successively.

The course in kiln drying is intended for factory and sawmill executives, foremen, kiln operators and other employees handling lumber or wood products, and the instruction is not confined to any particular type of kiln or kind of lumber. The laboratory has a convertible kiln which can be operated under either natural or forced circulation, and during the course a charge of lumber is dried so that the men may observe the results of sample boards.

This course includes the building and equipping of a kiln, its operation, study of wood, defects in drying and how to prevent them, the effect of kiln drying on the strength of wood, the air seasoning of lumber, the decay and durability of wood, and glues. The adaptability of different types of kilns for different species of wood, the correct temperatures to use, the importance of humidity in drying lumber, circulation, steaming and conditioning, the structure and composition of wood, the moisture content of wood, the shrinking and swelling of wood, and the identification of woods are among the subjects that are not only taught but demonstrated in a practical way. More students have taken this course than any other.

The course in boxing and crating is planned to be of assistance to any one engaged in the manufacture or sale of shipping containers and to any one in charge of the selection and use of containers for the shipment of goods.

The laboratory is equipped to test all types of containers. Two hexagonal revolving drums, the larger 14 feet in diameter, give the containers drops and knocks which simulate the actual stresses, shocks and rough handling which a package receives in commercial service. A vibration test machine reproduces the weaving actions and shocks to which a shipping container is subjected by the swaying of a moving freight car and the starting and stopping of a train. A compression machine tests the ability of different kinds of containers to resist crushing or distortion, while a drop test provides a means of comparing their ability to resist sudden shock and brings out their characteristic weaknesses. Every type of container that is used commercially is demonstrated.

The course in gluing is intended for executives, managers, foremen, and others in shops and factories which glue wood in any form, and for those making or selecting glue and gluing equipment. Emphasis is placed on the precautions which can easily be observed in the care and use of glues and in the gluing conditions so as to improve the quality of the joints. All kinds of glues and all the more common woods used in glue construction are considered during the course and complete demonstrations are conducted.

Those who sell lumber, either at wholesale or retail, are interested primarily in the course in wood properties and uses, but it is also of advantage to executives of sawmills and distributing agencies, to lumber buyers, and to consumers of lumber.

The purpose of this course is two-fold. First, to give the salesman information on the technical and economic aspects of lumber which will be of use to him in selling his product for its most suitable purpose, and to enable him to advise his customers as to the best methods of handling and using lumber. If they would avoid some of the embarrassments that result from unskillful merchandising.

Second, to give the purchasing agent and the consumer reliable and unbiased information concerning our commercial woods which will make it possible to buy wisely and use economically and efficiently.

LITTLE STICKY FINGERS

Little sticky fingers, little sticky thumbs,
Little lips of sweetness smeared with cookie crumbs.

Now my mother's ruined, now my shirt's a wreck.
All because I let you put those arms about my neck!

Here's a smear of something on my Sunday vest.
Here's a necklace tangled, stained and sadly mess'd:

Little sticky fingers, I'm a sight to see.

All because I let you climb upon my knee.

I've chocolate in my eyebrows, I've syrup in my hair.

And there are little finger prints on everything
I wear:

And here upon my trousers, you dropped your hand and jam'd:

Oh! little sticky fingers, it's a sorry sight I am.

And all the world can see them and all the world can note:

Your thumb prints on my collar and the stains
upon my coat:

But, little sticky fingers, if the world could only see:

I would find thumb marks plainly on the doting heart of me.

The Wrath to Come

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Copyright, 1924, by Little Brown & Co.
She lay watching the lazy movements of the yacht as it rose and fell, catching the black sunlit waves, glittering now and then in the faint moonshine. For a time she seemed utterly inert. Then she rose suddenly to her feet.

"I have a fancy to walk, Grant," she said. "No, don't come, please. I would not like to walk alone. It is a fancy of mine."

He helped her to her feet. She did not move again, but turned her shoulder and turned hastily away.

He leaned back in his chair, his eyes following her movements. She walked with rapid, unhesitating footsteps, sure-footed and graceful on the sloping deck, walked with her head a little uplifted, as though watching the rolling, moonlit path she was taking, although she had passed into a world of her own thoughts, as though she were pursuing phantom ideas, seeking comfort in impotent essays of the imagination. The wind blew in her hair but brought no colour to her cheeks. Time after time she paused, still, without a knock and such time it seemed to last that she was a little pater. At last he stopped her.

"You are trying yourself, Gertrude," he said kindly. "Take my arm if you want to walk any more."

"You're right," she assented. "I will go down. Good night, Grant."

He loosened his fingers from her shoulder and turned hasty away. He insisted on taking her down the companionway to the door of her state-room. She turned round there and smiled at him a little wistfully. The suite consisted of a tiny sitting room which was a bedroom and a bathroom with a tub, a washstand and white marble, and gleaming silver.

"You give me so much luxury, Grant," she sighed. "If only you could find a little kindness in your heart for me."

He felt suddenly brutal. He stooped and kissed her hands.

"Don't be frightened," he whispered, "my heart's full of kindness. So full—"

"So full, Grant?"

"So full that I don't know how to offer it to you," he answered. "You see, I'm a clumsy brute, Gertrude, and I've been too often able to forget the name when I thought you the most beautiful thing on earth."

"But you don't any longer," she cried.

He turned away. She listened anxiously to his receding footsteps. Then she drew herself on the sofa with a little moan. Afterwards she

Beauty Chats

The woman with the small features must dress to show herself as well and graceful as possible. She wears with a thin face, fine eyebrows (which means a fine looking, trim, gay profile) must wear straight-line, boyish clothes. The woman with fat cheeks and a bulbous nose must pull her hair back as much as possible, with her mouth as unbecoming in front as never dream of bobbing or stringing it, and must wear simple clothes that are almost, but not quite tailoring. A fat woman does not look well in strictly tailored clothes, though she looks far worse in trifles. She must choose more or less happy in-between styles. These are ruled without variations.

The very, very thin woman, however, should have a full or so to her dresses, and soft colors and soft materials. And the woman with a large nose and either heavy or voluptuous figure must wear dresses in great variety of styles and as rich in style as she pleases. She must only avoid gaudiness.

So much for choosing styles of clothes to improve, or harmonize with the profile. Very little can be done to change the features, therefore the profile stays as it is through life. An appearance improvement can be made by changing the style of hair dressing, by clearing the complexion, particularly the skin of the nose where large pores often collect, and by the use of masses and astragins to make thin or hollow cheeks plump. YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise mothers about the care of their children of any age or on any subject which does not belong to the field of the doctor.

Mrs. B. A. L.—If you will send me a self-addressed envelope I shall be glad to send you the leaflet on constipation in infants. The baby should not be fed oftener than once every three hours. Try this and I imagine your troubles will be ended.

Mrs. C.—Keepers' babies always develop constipation which is always a problem. I should provide him this winter with a sleeping garment that fits his feet, and with sleeves long enough to entirely cover the hands. Let him wear his knitted hand and diaper in bed and then pin his woolen outside blanket high up around his waist. If he cannot sleep, then let him get out of it while it is around him. The garments which are necessary can come in the front so that he won't be bothered by them. Better one good warm garment than he can't get rid of than lots of heavy ones under which he wriggles before morning.

Mrs. Z.—The diet leaflet is exactly what you want now. Your present menu is far from perfect. The baby of one year should have a varied diet, including meat, fruit, vegetables, etc. Potatoes we do not class as vegetables as they are so highly starched that they come under the heading of cereals and breads. The baby is a good weight. Twenty-one pounds is the average for one year. She should sleep at least three hours during the daytime and from 7 to 7 at night.

Mrs. H. M.—If you are seriously ill you should be under the care of a physician all during your pregnancy. The tablets you are taking are not of much value. The iron that the system makes use of is found in vegetables and fruits, especially spinach, celery, Brussels sprouts, beans, lettuce, carrots, and radishes, prunes, dried figs, and dates. In the yolks of eggs and wheat have a high percentage of iron; walnuts, peanuts and almonds, and lean meats.

Mr. C.—Keepers' babies

are often constipated because of iron in the diet. Better one good warm garment than he can't get rid of than lots of heavy ones under which he wriggles before morning. One meal and what you want now. Your present treatment you as he would any girl, you may be sure he was indifferent.

HAS HER RING
Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a young man with whom I have grown "steady" and with whom I stopped going two months ago, has a ring belonging to me. The last time I was with him I asked him for it but he refused to return it. I see him often on the street either with a girl or boy, but do not speak to him. Is there no law here for it? What do you suppose his object in refusing to return my ring? What would you advise me to do? In my estimation it is up to him to mention something about it as I have already done so. I value this ring greatly. M. G. G.—Can you tell me why the boy objects to returning your ring unless he has lost it or given it away. Write him a courteous note, stating that you value the ring highly and would appreciate its return.

HIS MOTHER
Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have many problems, but one which is with me night and day. I believe you can solve. I am young and the boy is young, but we are engaged to be married, but in all the time I have known him he has never been any more pleased to his parents, this hurt me greatly. Why do you suppose it has to be this way? I know he has always introduced his girl friends at home and they have always thought his mother wonderful. Do you think I should ask him to introduce us at some meeting or social gathering? Don't you think it's a bit affectionate? Your first question refers to a pretty superstition which is nothing more.

MAY RESURFACE BAD BRICK PAVING

Use of Tarvia-Gravel Mixture on Three Streets Suggested for 1925.

Experiments with tarvia and gravel as a filler for rough stretches of brick pavement on South Main and Court streets having proved successful the past summer, consideration is now being given by city officials to plan for more extensive use of the composition in 1925. Resurfacing of four blocks on South Main street, a block on Court street and one or more blocks on East and West Milwaukee streets has been suggested and may be carried out as a maintenance proposition, the cost being paid out of the general fund.

While the patching scheme worked out to great advantage this year, the city is hopeful of providing a smoother surface next year by going over all of the street with the exception of the street car right of way. It is believed a coating can be applied to the surface which will withstand the wear of traffic and still be rolled out at the tracks sufficiently to eliminate any ridge or ruts.

There are bad stretches of brick pavement on West Milwaukee street from the west end of the bridge to River street and on Court street from the east end of the bridge to South Milwaukee street. City Manager Henry Fausler and Street Engineer Joseph Lustig are anxious that improvements be made on these strips.

Repeated efforts have been made by the city toward getting the Janesville Traction company to loan the traction business to the city, with Main and Milwaukee streets but the financial condition of the company is declared to be such that the expense cannot be borne at this time. The traction line has a $6,000 paving bill to pay and other obligations to meet which it is claimed, prevent any further expense being incurred.

Large Calendar for Fall Term

There will be one of the largest calendars in the recent history of the Rock county circuit court at the fall session starting here Nov. 17 when the calendar is entered and on the 18th when the jury reports to Judge George Grinnan.

The schedule now being prepared shows at least 12 criminal cases and around 70 civil action cases.

Judge George Grinnan will hold court here next Wednesday to dispose of pending cases.

HOT STATE FIGHT TO BE CONCLUDED OVER WEEK-END

(Continued from page 1.) power in the state for a number of years, the campaign of the party has been more active than usual because of support thrown to Judge Lueck by certain republican groups.

Gov. Blaine, except for a few statements, has given little attention to the state campaign, apparently confident that he will be returned to the executive's chair next Tuesday. He spent two weeks in the east in behalf of the La Follette-Wheeler ticket and the final week before election in Minnesota. He will wind up his campaign activities at Oshkosh Saturday night.

Lueck in Madison

Judge Lueck will speak in Madison Saturday night in one of his final appearances. He has made an extensive tour throughout the state during the past month, visiting the majority of the 71 counties. His campaign jumped into notice when Senator Irving I. Lehroot, junior member of the U. S. senate from Wisconsin, Roy Wilcox, republican candidate for governor against Govt. Blaine in 1920, and a number of other prominent republicans announced their support of the Democratic ticket. A number of anti-blaine progressives have also thrown their support to Lueck.

Observers of the campaign are speculating much on the probable result of Lueck's campaign. It is pointed out that in 1920, the last year the democratic ticket was elected, the governor, Gen. Robert M. LaFollette, polled more than 200,000 votes. His total vote was slightly over 100,000 less than that of Gov. Blaine, however.

State, Center of Interest

other than the gubernatorial race, little interest has been developed in the campaign. The other republican nominees for state offices have made no move with the exception of Secretary of State Fred L. Zimmerman and Henry A. Huber, nominee for Lieutenant governor, who have devoted most of their time to speaking within the state for the La Follette-Wheeler ticket. The congressional races also have been quiet, with the exception of the republican nominees out of the state on the La Follette campaign.

Wisconsin will be one of the centers of interest in the presidential campaign because of Senator La Follette's candidacy. There has been comparative quiet in the state, except for the La Follette-Wheeler ticket, but supporters of the Coolidge-Wheeler ticket have waged a strenuous drive. This, it is believed, has been in an effort to overcome what is considered to be a decided lead for the Wisconsin senator in his home state.

TOFF OFF THE GRIDIRON

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Supporters of Iowa hope somehow Grange Hill, sophomore, will not be available in the Hawkeye Blue while the Edgerton bats with a broken shoulder. In Saturday's fight for the Big Ten crown at Urbana, their hopes were dimmed because McHugh, important cog in the interference for Grange, may be out with an injured hand and the team may be unbalanced with it. —Touché, however, led a grimly determined Hawkeye squad into Urbana Friday,抜く the grizzlies of his former mentor, Bob Zuppke. —The Iowans were perturbed particularly for Grange, once a pupil of Ingwersen, when he coached at the same freshman Michigan and now was with the Hawkeyes. —Touché, moreover, led a grimly determined Hawkeye squad into Urbana Friday,抜く the grizzlies of his former mentor, Bob Zuppke. —The Iowans were perturbed particularly for Grange, once a pupil of Ingwersen, when he coached at the same freshman Michigan and now was with the Hawkeyes. —Touché, moreover, led a grimly determined Hawkeye squad into Urbana Friday,抜く the grizzlies of his former mentor, Bob Zuppke.

Here is the record of the teams: 1919, Janesville, 29; Edgerton, 6; 1920, Janesville, 45; Edgerton, 5; 1921, no game; 1922, Janesville, 6; Edgerton, 46; 1923, 1924 and 1925, no game; 1926, Janesville, 6; Edgerton, 6; 1927, Janesville, 7; Edgerton, 13; 1928, Janesville, 23; Edgerton, 7; 1929, Janesville, 23; Edgerton, 7. This gives four wins for each team and one tie.

Bettie Wetherby Expected.

The promise of cold weather and the laying of the dust on the field by rain during the night is expected to make Saturday a real football weather of the season.

The Blues practiced until 6 p.m. under 20 electric arc lights Thursday, erected through the courtesy of William Schmidley of the Janesville Electric company at the suggestion of Frank Sinclair, sports editor of the Gazette. The tent was gathered by a high, warm wind that kept the field in a cloud of dust. The team is beginning to come through, is fighting harder and faster and hoping to it better than all season. The Blue line has been bolstered and the defensive strengthend so that the team can handle anything Edgerton puts forth.

To Stop Grange.

Though T. Guinness, star Edgerton fullback, has been reported hurt, Gibson has discounted stories from sources who have prepped his prestige to stop the Edgerton plunger. —Doc Woodworth of the Orlie Club have been working on the line all week, Gibson has devoted all his attention to the backfield.

The team members have decided that if they lose Saturday, none of them shave until after the season is over.

Members of both the Janesville and the Edgerton squads will be the guests at the first show, Saturday night, at the Jeffers theater.

EDGERTON IS COMING!

WITH 300 ROOTERS

Edgerton—Five hundred loyal Edgerton rooters are expected to follow the team to the Janesville stadium Saturday. Two hundred tickets had been sold to high school students alone Friday morning and were still going fast.

Toward Grange, the crack fullback of the Edgerton team, is sure to play in Saturday's game. —Early Friday were that he had recovered from the leg injury received in scrimmaging earlier in the week and is in fine condition. McNamara, center, was but slightly, Thursday, but enough to keep him out of the game.

Practice Thursday night was devoted to running back pants and the development of a new punter should Grange not be able to play. Thirty minutes were devoted to scrimmaging, with closing at 6:30 under lights, only signals will start the game.

PENNSYLVANIA FOR COOLIDGE, BELIEF

Delaware Also Held Safe for President Despite La Follette Drive.

DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1924 by the Janesville Gazette to the Janesville Gazette.

Philadelphia — Pennsylvania and Delaware show every sign of giving Calvin Coolidge substantial majorities notwithstanding the effort of the La Follette people to win the Labor vote in both states.

The republican majorities are talking of a record margin, the largest of any republican state in the union, but they admit their difficulty in arousing interest in an energetic and determined the get-out-the-vote movement is proceeding so well that the chances are Pennsylvania will poll an unusually large total.

The new voters will more than overcome the losses to La Follette, for it appears that the regular republicans have been the stay-at-homes in Pennsylvania. It takes time and money and organization to get out the vote and the conditions have all three in Pennsylvania.

All this effort, however, is not directed merely at getting a large vote for the sake of making a record. It has back of it a distinct drive for congressional seats, and six congressional districts which the republicans hope to capture. Their chances in congressional campaigns, the democratic nominees have openly sought

La Follette support, and in many cases endorsements have not been denied.

Six Seats Gain in Prospect

To pick up six seats in Pennsylvania would be a material gain for the republican administration, as Pennsylvania republicans are usually conservatives who vote with the administration. The outcome is easy to see, however, because the labor vote in many districts is uncertain. The miners particularly have everybody guessing, for while most of their leaders have endorsed La

Follette, John Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, is supporting President Coolidge and has been the one who is following the lead of former Secretary William E. Wilcox of the department of labor, the champion of the miners cause.

Gov. Pinchot has concerned himself for the most part with his own situation, hoping to get a legislature which will assist him in carrying his program. He came out unequivocally for the republican national ticket at the meeting for Daws held recently, and he has since been working with the national organization in the hope of securing the election of republicans throughout the state.

Three in Delaware

Just across the line from Delaware is another interesting situation, for while Delaware's electoral vote seems certain to be cast for Coolidge, the senatorial race is by no means a certainty for the republicans.

Coleman DuPont, who won the republican nomination after a long contest in the primaries, was not needed in Delaware, all the friction inside the party;

in fact the democratic hopes of electing

James Tunnell are based largely on the frictional quarrels provoked by the primary contest of DuPont.

The La Follette groups are also out of tune with each other, for the socialist and the communists and the most

La Follette men being agreed on the presidential race but not in unison on the senatorial contest.

DuPont in Foreground

As usual the traditional troubles of the DuPont family are mixed up in the situation. The son is John DuPont, while some of the younger sons could be the main suspect of Tunnell. It would not be surprising to see a democratic United States senator from Delaware, though this will not occur if the Coolidge majority takes on the proportions of a landslide. That is DuPont's principal hope. In fact most everywhere in the west to Daws, but this is largely the vote that La Follette took from the democrats at the outset. It will have more of an influence on the congressional than the presidential contest.

A REAL FEATURE STORY

COMMENT ON THE UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 2, 1924.

Read Luke 15.

WM. SOUTHERN, JR.

Newspaper editors in these days are continually on the lookout for feature stories, stories of human interest, and the reporter who can weave his observations into such a story is well paid and sometimes even gets his name in an otherwise anonymous paper. A feature story is not concerned especially about the facts, it is the heart throbs and the appeal to the interest of the reader.

Jesus taught by means of human interest stories and in the fifteenth chapter of the Gospel of Luke there are three such. We have been taught that everything in the Bible is true, that only facts are recorded there. Sometimes the old teaching mixes us up on our religion. The story of the Prodigal Son was not even based on facts. There was no father and no son and no older brother. The story was made up out of whole cloth by The Master for the purpose of teaching a great lesson. He taught much in this way, we call such lessons parables. While we know that the text of the story is not based on facts, yet there never was a truer story, true to human nature, vitally, eternally, blessedly true.

The hero of this story was a younger son. He lived on the old homestead with his father and older brother. I have no doubt that his older brother imposed on him as his boyishness, which is also characteristic of older brothers and sometimes of older sisters. The boy, we do not even know his name, he was probably called Sonny or Buddy, had to milk the goats, turn the grindstone, run errands and do the drudgery of the farm, from which his older brother had absconded. He probably had to wear pants made out of his older brother's outgrown clothing, and I do not know of anything more humiliating to a boy growing up than to inherit all the second hand things on the place. The father loved both his boys but he was so busy and so far away from his own youth that he probably did not understand what was going on in the mind of his youngest son.

When he was almost grown the boy rebelled. Many a night he had wept tears of resentment and planned to run away. Now his resolution culminated in determination and he went to his father and asked for a share of the family fortune. This was a wise father and he gave the boy a stake and sent him on his way. What happened? Did he know what might happen to your boy or mine today? Your boy would probably go to New York, buy several suits of tailor made clothing, see the white lights, go to the dance halls, drink a little and "see life." He would also go broke and lucky would you be if your boy decided to come home. How would you treat him when he came slipping back by the kitchen door hoping to see mother first and to have her intercede with you?

The boy in the story was a Jew. He followed the way of wine, women and dice, the same old way which is new to youth today. Of course the boot-leggers and the girls got his money and in order to live he took whatever job he could get. He was hired to feed hogs, the greatest humiliation which could come to a Jew. He ate acarob bean, that he received at the inside of their pods of the carob bean which he fed to the hogs. Then it was that he concluded to go home. The story runs fast from this point. His father met him at the gate, caught him in his arms fed him and reinstated him in the family with a big dinner. I have often wondered if this boy in the story had a mother. You see, I think not, for a mother had been living, she would not have run away in the first place.

I have a considerable sympathy for that elder brother. He had cause to grumble a little. Here was the boy who had run away from home, had wasted his money, had gone on a protracted spree and when he came home was penniless and made much of. If the brother had his way he would have been haled before the Juvenile Judge and sent to the reformatory school and never would have had much chance to make a man thereafter.

What happened? Did he know what might happen to your boy or mine today? Your boy would probably go to New York, buy several suits of tailor made clothing, see the white lights, go to the dance halls, drink a little and "see life."

He would also go broke and lucky would you be if your boy decided to come home. How would you treat him when he came slipping back by the kitchen door hoping to see mother first and to have her intercede with you?

he was doing. He wondered if he and his father's love, why should we fear him? He had caused the boy to want for our fate with a loving God?

I do not believe in sowing wild oats. It is not necessary and a boy does not need his filing into dissipates to become a man. This story of Jesus tells me of the kind of God I love. In the Ten Commandments as illustrated in moving picture, the mother, as she lay dying, told her son that she had taught him to fear God, that she should have taught him to love God. And I think that is the big lesson in this remarkable picture. It is the big lesson in this human feature story which Jesus told his disciples. I could easily hate the God of some people, a stern, frowning, albeit just, all powerful God, watching for me to do something which he had commanded against so that he could cast me into hell. That does not meet my idea of God at all. It was not the idea that Jesus taught.

Few of us would have a chance if we were punished according to our deserts. Most of us have to be starved and broke before we can get that right perspective.

I believe in a God who loves me no matter what I do, no how evil I become, who yearns for the meek and women who flout and revile him and his love, who is ready and anxious to forgive and relent.

The Journal has moved into its new $2,000,000 home

FOR eighteen hours last Saturday and Sunday 100 men and 20 trucks labored steadily to transfer the various departments of Wisconsin's leading newspaper to their new quarters. This was the largest moving operation ever accomplished in Wisconsin in such a short time. Nevertheless, The Journal organization succeeded in the almost miraculous feat of printing and delivering every edition on regular schedule.

better newspaper service "for all Wisconsin"—

FIVE years have been spent in the planning and construction of this model newspaper plant. It is the result of The Journal's consistent effort, through forty-two years, to give Wisconsin people the best possible newspaper service. Many improvements are now made possible for the benefit of Journal readers.

largest newspaper plant in the northwest—

AND the people of Wisconsin can well take pride in the fact that no other newspaper plant in the United States excels The Journal in equipment or facilities for service. Few equal it. Many new developments in machinery and methods have been originated by The Journal and will benefit the entire newspaper industry. All have one purpose—to give you better and quicker newspaper service than ever before.

The Journal is not yet ready for visitors—

TO GET settled and to properly co-ordinate the work of all departments will, of course, require some time. As soon as everything is running smoothly, a cordial invitation will be extended to you to see Wisconsin's leading newspaper in the making. Watch The Journal for the "at home" announcement.

a future visit to The Journal building—

YOU will thoroughly enjoy your inspection tour of The Journal plant. To watch the news of the world, the nation and the state comes from its numberless sources; to follow it as it is skillfully and quickly made ready for the gigantic presses; to see The Journal printed at the rate of 125,000 32-page papers per hour—is one of the most interesting and educational sights in Wisconsin.

Throbbing Heart Stories of Child Work by Kiwanis

Many are the stories throbbing with human interest that can be told by local physicians of the work being done by the Kiwanis club in caring for the underprivileged child. The Kiwanis—helping weak little bodies, removing defects so that they will have an even chance to become useful citizens.

This work, the center of which is the wonderful children's ward in the Mercy hospital, established by the Kiwanis club at a large expense, has been supported by the funds raised each year by the presentation of the Kiwanis Minstrels, which this year will be given next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights at the Myers theater.

One child was actually saved from the approach of death, which would have come when the heart came under the Kiwanis club attention. The picture of the scene in the squallid little shack that housed 10 persons in which the two year old boy was found, will not seem possible to the average person in Janesville accustomed to home surroundings and conditions and to those who have never known what it means to be hungry. The place couldn't even be called a house, it was a box car, the child did not know a machine from a typewriter, a year after he came into the world. The mother was out of town and into this family of a distant relative, the child was placed. There were seven other children in the house and it was evident that the two year old infant received little care.

A mastoid in one ear had formed and had received no treatment, the skin over the child's face was a mass of ulcers that had closed one eye and spread to the other side of the face. The baby weighed what a six months old normal infant weighs.

Four months care in the Kiwanis ward at Mercy hospital brought about a remarkable change in the baby, who became very popular with the nurses. His weight was brought back to normal through proper nourishment. The mastoid was cured and the ulcers healed with proper attention. Tonisks and adhesions were removed but not until the last two months.

Both ears and eyes are in perfect condition and the baby is enjoying a normal growth and has found a three days automobile trip to Green Bay and other cities of northern Wisconsin.

Stanley Yonke, Duluth, spent three weeks at his home, 638 South Third street. He was enroute to Milwaukee to transact business.

An Editorial

It has long been known that the crowd on the side line of any game has nearly as much to do with the outcome as the team itself. Take, for instance, a football game. If the crowd is one hundred per cent confident, it forgets the "boners" and sees only the good plays. If the crowd has a cheer in the right time and a word of encouragement in the right place * * * it's a dead sure cinch the team will win.

It's just about the same thing with a community, and its activities. Try to imagine a city or town of any size with some objective it is striving to reach in a definite time. Do you think there would ever be a chance of failure if all the citizens of that town would be like the crowd at the football game—cheering on the workers, speaking words of kindness and good-will—each doing his bit to put the thing across? Not by a long shot! With the co-operation of all anything or any city will.

It's that kind of boosters that are represented on this page. They are some of the Janesville folks who are always and forever back of anything that's for their city. They realize the importance of athletics in Janesville. They are doing more than their share to put it over by making this page possible. The rest of us can show our appreciation by telling them so.
